DAILY BIBLE READINGS

By way of encouraging the reading of God's Word when perhaps a Bible is not available, we print a few verses here for each day of the week. SUNDAY

Love worketh no ill to his neighbor: therefore love is the fulfilling of the law.

Let us not love in word, neither

Woe mito you. Pharisees! for ye tithe mint and rue and all manner of herbs, and pass over judgment and the love of God: these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone. But do not ye after their works: for they say, and do not.

TUESDAY

Whatsoever ye do. do it heartily, as to the Lord, and not tinto men.
Not with eye service, as meneasers; but as the servants of Christ, doing the will of God from the heart.

SATURDAY!

Behold therefore the goodness and severity of God: on them which fell, severity: but towards thee, goodness, if thou continue in His goodness, otherwise thou also shalt be cut off.

So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom.

FENELON'S CHOICE

A man is known by his books. A love of high-class literature gives a man a peculiar position in the community. Somehow we always how in profound respect to the man who is in love with the masters of literature. Wisdom is written upon his face and knowledge shines forth in his conversation. Because he wall-tread man his ideas are on his face and knowledge shines forth in his conversation. Because he is a well-read man his ideas are apt to be broad and his judgment prone to be sound. More than all, he has an inner source of joy and a perpetual source of comfort. "If." said Fenelon, "the riches of both Indies, if the crowns of all kingdoms of Europe, were laid at my feet, in exchange for my love of reading, I would spurn them all."

SENTENCE SERMONS

Life with God is an endless hope; without Him it is a hopeless end.

The Bible in the memory is bet-er than the Bible in the book ease. We shall have all eternity to cele-brate the victories but we have only the few hours before sunset to win them.

The Plants of the Lord

An Article especially for Young People

A LADY once bought a nice flower in a pot, and put it in the window, thinking that for many months she would enjoy the sweet seen of the blossoms. On the sweet scent of the blossoms. Of the stem were many little shoots coming out, and beautial buds were on the stalks alt ready to become lovely flowstalks alt ready to become lovely low-ers. She watched it day by day, and energhily watered it and kept it from harm. As the days went by she saw that the blossoms began to droop and the buds, instead of opening, were withering away, and the little shoots were rotting and falling off.

were rotting and falling oft.

At last the poor plant died, and there was nothing pretty or nice smelling left about it. Only a dry stalk, with a bad smell, was what restalk, with a bad smell, was what remained of the once-lovely flower thad made the room sweet with its scent and beautiful with its bright colors. She felt very disappointed, and sadly pulled up the old stump and threw it on the rubbish heap.

What was that little round hole she saw in the stalk? She took it up to examine it, and out poked the black and ugly head of a plant-destroying insect.

So that was why the pretty flowers drooped and the buds withered and drooped and the bads witnered and the shoots dropped off and the whole plant at last died—one little worm had been attacking the root. If only she had discovered it in time she could had discovered it in time she could have saved her plant.

Now every one who serves Jesus may be likened to a plant. They are God's plants, and He expects them to grow. Of course, they must be planted first before they can grow, and to be planted in the garden of God we must repent of sip and ask Jesus to give us a new heart. Well now, having been planned or converted—we ing been planted or converted—we must keep on growing better and stronger and more beautiful in our characters every day. God expects it of its. He has promised to look after us and keep us from all harm, and in one place He says. "I the Lord do keep it, I will water it every mo-ment; lest any hurt it, I will keep it night and day." (Isa. xxvii, 3). With such loving care we ought to thrive been planted or converted-we and bring forth the beautiful and and bring forth the beautiful and sweet-scented blossoms of purity, faith and love. We ought to be producing fresh shoots and bads continually that will break forth into loving acts, kind words and real heuri-worship of our Father and Protector. Thus we will be a sweet savor of Christ in every place, and a beautiful partern of godiness that will attract and win others.

If we are not doing this there is something wrong, and we must look for the cause of it. No amount of care and watering will make us good and blossom if deep down in the heart a little worm of sin is cating its way into our lives. Oh, these little things, the things that so many pass over and say it doesn't matter. The sin of neglect is a very common one, and is neglect is a very common one, and is the cause of a great many fair young plants that might have been trees in God's garden, withering up and final-

God's garden, withering up and final-being thrown away as useless. Don't neglect to pray, don't neglect to read God's word every day, don't neglect to give your testimony, and then this awful little worm will be mable to do you any harm. There are many other little things which are very destructive to God's plants, and if the little worm of dischaftlener. very destructive to God's plants, and if the little worm of disobedience, deceiffulness, bad temper, or any other thing, which you know is evil is gnawing its way into your life, oh, go down on your knees and ask God to destroy it, for if you don't it will in the end destroy you and how disappointed and sorry God will be to have to pluck you up and cast you away into outer darkness. away into outer darkness.

It is not this will that this should happen, for He loves every one of His plants, and wants them all to be His plants, and wants them all to be graceful and loving and pure and rue, and in spite of all the temptations you meet you can be what He wants you to be, and then you will always be ready to say, "I'll go where you want me to go, dear Lord."

May every reader determine to be a plant that will please God when He looks upon it, and in the end they will hear His "Well done."

The Young People's Annual

An Event of Great Importance—Its Object—A call for more workers in a resultful field of Labor

E have now reached the sea-son for the holding of the Annual Demonstrations in Annual Demonstrations in connection with our Young People's Work. The event is of the greatest importance to the young people themselves as it is at this time they get the awards they have carned during the year and with which they are able to give tangible proof to their parents as to their attendance, behaviour and work. The object of the Annual, among other things, is to provide and distribute suitable prizes to the Company Meeting members according to merit eovering Bible knowledge, regular attendance, deportment and mental work.

Another object is to stimulate the

Another object is to stimulate the work among the young people and to hring every agency of this branch of Salvation Army endeavor before the public.

We are anxious that it should be known that we believe in the conversion of children and that we want to educate and train a greater number of young people to preach the Gospel. Thus bringing the work hefore the parents as well as the young people we hope to interest them more deeply in this work.

That great progress has been made

That great progress has been made during the past year we have much evidence, but we are surf Officers and workers who are engaged in this branch will be far from satisfied complished. There is room for advance which will altogether sink into insignificance, by comparison, what has already been recorded. A vast erowd of young people await the endeavors of godly carnest men and women to turn their feet into the right path—they stand at the parting of the ways, or have as yet only proceeded a short distance down the wrong road.

Strenuous effort will be required to convince of their mistake any who have started on the wrong road and get them to face in the right direction—it will mean real, desperate fighting with the forces of evil to do it—but the issues at stake make it all well worth while. No more resulful field of labor could be imagined, provided the worker tackles it seriously and preseveres in his toil, than that we are now considering.

From all round comes a cry for more Company Guards for the Sunday afternoon Meetings and in

From all round comes a cry for more Company Guards for the Sunday afternoon Meetings, and in many cases the number of young people attending could be almost indefinitely increased if Company Guards could be found for them. No countade who has free time on Sunday afternoons should feel the tale of his or her day's duty has been filled if they have not assisted in the young people's Company Meeting.

There are plenty of guides available who will "show the way to Babylon." and upon everyone who is journeying heavenwards rests the responsibility of pointing out the road to the New Jerusalem. No more likely spot where this can be done with effect could be selected than that at which the roads of right and wrong begin to separate.

"Too much stress cannot be placed upon the importance of giving every possible attention to those developments of Salvation Army Young People's Work that have for their aim the keeping hold of the youth of both sexes during the period when they are passing from the juniors to the seniors.

It will be noted by all who study the Army's plan of working that it is not only desired to reach and instruct those who are still childrenthis is fully recognized—but all those who can come under the heading of the designation "Young People." A careful study of the plans laid down in the Orders and Regulations will show that great care has been taken to provide for those who have reached the very critical stage of life between childhood and full development, and where these have of life between childhood and full development, and where these have been put into operation most encouraging results have followed. Every possible effort should be put forth to help and bless the young men and women who are just entering upon the responsibilities of life. They have their most useful days before them, and are capable of becoming powerful for either good or evil. Though a stage further advanced than childhood, they may be still considered as the raw material of life, and the influences that are brought to hear upon them at this period will have a very great effect upon their future, Should anyone doubt the necess-

Should anyone doubt the necessity for the putting forth of a special effort to reach this class, let him take his stand, during the Sunday evening church hour, at a corner of the principal promenade of his city or town. He will find it more or less crowded with a laughing, giddy crowd of young people, absolutely absorbed in the frivolities of the noment. moment

Or, let him watch the crowds who frequent the places of amusement, or attend sports, and observe how the majority of the brightest and best of the youth of our land appear best of the youth of our land appear to be so completely taken up with the pursuit of pleasure that everything else is thrust impatiently aside. Let him try to ealenlaet the time, energy and talent which is, if not worse, absolutely wasted during the course of a single year, and then picture the impetus that the cause of Christ would receive could the stream be diverted into the right channels. No further incentive, we venture to think, would be needed to inspire any follower of God to put forth his utmost endeavor.

TEACHING THE CHILDREN TO SAVE THEIR SOULS

He looked at me from his height. I worship God," he answered, much amused, and hent to a boy tugging at his jacket to pat his head, and tell him to run off home to bed, and be sure and say his prayers.

Walking along, he revealed that he Salvation Arms had commissioned him one of its Company Guards.

A Company Guard was a kind of sunday-school teacher, with a wider range. He was hound to interest himself in the welfare of any child who happened within his orhit. He had a big class of youngsters, young pags of mischief, but no real badness in any of 'em, and he baught liem Sundays the lessons appointed, often finding it a lot harder to carn 'em himself week-nights and old minutes in the dinner-hours han the kids did.

A man's brain wasn't above being tired by hand labor; and a book was, in ordinary, about the best sleeping draught he knew. Still, God helped him, and his elass was as well grounded in the Bible and the way of Salvation as any other, thank the good Lord!

There was a mint of talk now about the value of children to the nations. He didn't want to judge nohody, and certainly not his betters; but he did wish there was a little less talk and a lot more done. Here was a good half of the Empire, 'sfar's a man like him could reckon, growing up anyhow, with no settled truths, nor why principles is principles clear to their minds. And the child's mind, mind you, is a sharp thing.

is principles clear to their minds. And the child's mind, mind you, is a sharp thing.

A child argues straight, whether he does it out with his tongue, or keeps it inside him because he's afraid of you. A child knows good when he sees or hears it: which is more than can be said of some of us. And if he's tanght he'll be ready to pay the price for doing right; which we ain't in a hurry to do, as a general thing. And it ain't a mite of use telling children about religion, if you don't act out what you say you believe and want them to do. You tell a child you know. "Very well," says he, "if it is right and hest, why don't you do it?" And a child, d'rect!- it's got even a foggy idea of reason, can he taugh truth and right.

If we know, and are better than children, how is it we ain't as good as little children? He could tell me, the tears often jumped in his eyes at some of their answers and say-ings. If he had his way, he'd count it a crime for there to be a hungry ings. It he had his way, he d count it a crime for there to be a hungry kiddie or one without a deeent home. Why, some in his own Company didn't know what love, or a quiet home or a decent meal or bed. was. A bit of bread and drippin' for dinner, mostly, and not that sometimes; often off to school to try to learn with their poor little stomachs pinched with emptiness; blows and curses; made to run their little legs off to earn a few pence, and no thanks given 'em.

By this time we were in his house. There was a white eloth on the table; the portions of food were custion was in dad's wooden chair; there were orderliness and peace in the home.

there were orderliness and peace in the home.

"Aye," said he, standing up to say Grace. "I've worked among children a-many years, and know what I'm saying. If it hadn't been for Salvation I should have been an anarchist. But the Army's taught me two wrongs never made a right, and to do my bit, and wait for God's justice."

"Are there many Company

"Are there many Company Guards in the Salvation Army?"
"Many a thousand, thank God, and every one taught by the Army to love and serve the children as they would the Lord if He was on earth. The Army teaches the kid-dies to serve God, save their little souls, do good to their bodies, he teetotal, not to smoke, nor swear, nor lie, nor talk dirt, nor injure auylody, or get into debt.

"If they serve Christ He'll look after them. And He does. There's thousands of lads that is grown men that is right away from the gutters and doing well for theirselves and the world, just hecause they was took hold of by the Army when nobody else eared for their little lives. It's a big work, a Company Guard's, and it's full of pay."

"You do get paid something then?"

He was very delighted. Of course, then?"

He was very delighted. Of course, he was paid. Rather! How much? Well, it was so big it couldn't be counted, and there was more to come. A millionaire he'd he—in Well, it was so big it couldn't be counted, and there was more to come. A millionaire he'd he—in Heaven when one and another rushed up and said, "Oh, you ted me to the Friend for little children, and He's made me happy for ever!" Pay? Didn't you call the love of the kids pay? Didn't you call the love of the kids pay? Didn't you call the satisfaction God gives you in the work pay? Wasn't setting them little feet in the right road pay? A man always came back to what he learnt in childhood when he was at the end of himself and sick of sin. You couldn't wipe out what the young mind took in, never Yes, it was all pay, good pay, thank God.

And now it was past ten, and he'd got to be up for the week's work in the morning, so let's have a word of prayer and thanksgiving and get to rest. We knelt on the floor. His prayer took in the whole world of children of all creeds and colors.

The Campaign was a great inspiration and help and best of all we are pleased to report twelve souls at the Cross. The Officers and Soldiers from Brockville Corps were present on Friday night, also Lieutenant Parnell from Gananoque.

recorded as the coldest for many years, the people, flocked to these Meetings.

On Monday night, the Colonel, necompanied by Captain Shute and Headquarters Staff, conducted a converts' Meeting at which sixty-seven were present who had knelt the merey-seat at the three City Corps since the opening of the Winder Campaign. The Meeting was very interesting. The Colonel expressed his great pleasure at having the opportunity of meeting such a number of converts. He spoke very forcibly on the importance of abandoning everything that pertains to the world, or as the Apostle Paul says "Laying aside every weight and the sin which doth so easily beest ins," An account of his early fighting as a young convert was deeply appreciated.

Captain Shute also gave an interesting account of her conversion, and the struggles she had to face. She said that the cause of her success was much prayer and the studying of God's Word.

It was pleasing to note the number who were anxious to sign the Articles of War, and take their stand as Salvation Army Soldiers.

HOLLAND

Military Officer Interested in Scouts and Guards

at flaarlem they are forming a Troop of forty-five members.

"Last week a gentleman of high military rank expressed himself as being interested in the new venture. He prophesied great success for our Life-Saving Scouts and Guards, saying that whatever the Salvation Army ing that whatever the Salvation Army took in hand they were bound to succeed in it.

"At Haarlem I had related to me the following incident which goes to show the high esteem in which the Movement is held in that town. A how who frequently attended the Bio-scope saw on a film on one occasion, a boy attacking another with a knife. He went home and stabbed his friend, boy attacking another with a shirter.

He went home and stabbed his friend, causing a nasty wound in the arm.
The Inspector of Police came to the house, and informed the parents that the boy would probably be sent to a Reformatory School. The mother said that her son had just joined the Salvation Army Sconts and that he wished to become a good Scont. The inspector replied, well, if that is so, they will not prosecute. The decision was that no further proceedings would be taken on condition that he continued with the Sconts.

"In the Amsterdam I. Corps there are several blind boys who attend the Meetings, two of whom quine to the enitent form when the General was tere, and these boys, since the instal-berne, and these boys, since the instal-ation of the Troop, have been brought to the meetings by certain Scouts."

"The other day, desiring to obtain a more definite idea of the number of people who pass through the section where the Army's exhibits are installed. I set myself to count. It was no casy task, for smudry visitors stopped to ask questions about the Army, while others asked for the explanatory pamphlet offered them. Nevertheless, thring one hour I counted 1,006 persons—a total which after all conveys but a faint idea of the crowds of people who obtained some impression of the Army's operations in latin America and other lands.

"Last week I was accompanied by Mrs. Steve", who was attired in the usual regulation blue miform. It was deeply interesting to watch the visitors as they came along.

At the opening Meeting Lieut.-Colonel Miche who is pioneering the work of the Army in Brazil, was assisted by several Officers, of whom only two could speak Portuguese. The congregation soon lost all signs of timidity and joined most heartly in the singing. Their interest never flagged and when at the close they each re-ceived the good things their enthusiasm was great.

CHINA

Chinese Victory Within Sight of "Thousand Gods' Mountains"

The following extract from a letter written by Adjutant Graham of Tshnanfu, China, well illustrates the agressive work which is being done by the Army amidst the dark heathendom of that country.

"To-day has been a special festival day for this part of the country, and thousands of people streamed out to the "Thousand Gods" Mountain, about eight miles from the city, to worship. The three Corps here mitted, the Thousand Gods' Mountain, about eight miles from the city, to worship. The three Corps here mitted, and we held a number of open-air Meetings, had four converts at the drum-head, sold over one thousand Gospel portions, and one hundred and cighty 'War Crys.'

"Truly an 'innumerable multime of people had gathered together. I have never seen the like hefore, and feel confident that the seed of speech and print scattered in all directions will bring forth a good barvest.

"Within a short distance from where thousands were bowing down before false gods, four carnest seek-ers, with the light just breaking upon them, were bending low before the true God. A small proportion, yet a wonderful source of inspiration!"

During a recent series of Meetings held in Peking, and led by Commissioner and Mrs. Pearce, a number of converts were registered. The good work is progressing and the Chinese make excellent lighters for God and His Kingdom.

EDITORIAL NOTES

"Many Happy Returns"

The General's Birthday is an occasion when many thousands of occasion when many thousands of Salvationists and a great host of Salvationists and a great host of friends unite in praying God's best blessing may rest upon him. He has been remembered in this way for many years, and the same will apply on Wednesday of next week. March 8th, when our honored Leader will celebrate his 67th birth-

It is occasion for deepest thanks-Ît is occasion for deepest thanks-giving to .God that our heloved General is still at the very forefront of this great War, leading forward his forees with a tireless vigor, and a strength of sonl which not only inspires every Officer and Soldier fighting under his direction, but calls forth their love and loyalty calls forth their love and loyalty and faith.

While praying for the General at this time a special blessing from the Divine Treasury, Canada East includes also Mrs. Booth, his continual comrade in this War.

Immediately after his Birthday last year the General caused to be inserted in the British "War Cry" a message which we take it may be repeated with certainty this year. It ran as follows:—

"The General desires to express

"The General desires to express his very sincere thanks for all the kind messages he received in connection with his birthday. They are too many to reply to personally, and he hopes the senders, whether at home or in other lands, and whether in the Army or outside its ranks, will accept this acknowledgement.

"To know that he is the sender of the sen

To know that he is remembered and that his needs are brought be-and that his needs are brought be-fore the Lord by so many countades and friends is a strength and joy."

Up to the hour of going to press with this issue of the "War Cry" no word has reached us as to the Welword has reached us as to the Welcome Home which the General was to take part in at Clapton Congress Hall, London, Englaud, on his return from India and Ceylon, but there, can be little donbt that the ocasion would constitute a record. There would naturally be much leager anticipation, and the hearing from the General's own lins of the blessings with which God has crewined his Campaign would assuredly provoke, tremendots enthusiastic.

THE WAR IN ITALY

PROGRESS IN THE FACE OF

Interview with Lieut.-Colonel Frank Barrett, in the British "War Cry"

Courageous Salvationists who the Army's battles in Italy find the path of progress exceedingly difficult. It is therefore all the more gratifying that the past year has witnessed advances in all sections of activity in that Territory, Lieut.-Colonel Frank Barrett, the Territorial Commander, who has just paid a brief visit to London, gave the British "War Cry" some particulars. The Fascisti Movement, which has been so prominently before the pubaffected Army operations. The at-titude of the "Black Shirts" towards the Army is revealed in the following

The Colonel's daughter, Norah, who is a Life-Saving Guard, was travel-ling from Naples to Rome when at one of the stations the train was ling from Naples to isome one of the stations the train was hoarded by about fifty Fascisti. A number stood along the corridor while the lieutenant in charge and two others occupied the carriage where the young Salvationist was sitting. Presently the lientenant asked her to Presently the lientenant asked her to explain to him her uniform and the work of the Army. Its showed especial interest when he heard of the Army's Home for children, and inquired whether he could place his motherless girl in one of them. Pointing to a sear on his right temple received in his last encounter, he remarked, "A little deeper, and I should not have been here. Then my motherless child would have been also fatherless." Before leaving the train each of the Fascists shook hands considered with the remark should be a supported by the statement of the sta each of the Fascists shook hards cordially with the young Salvationist, and wished the Army well.

Developed rare courage
The very fact that Italian Salva-The very fact that Italian Salvationists have to sacrifice so much and endure such persecution has developed in them rare courage and strength. There are arrayed against them antagonistic forces of greater strength than in most countries where the Army Plag flies. At a Corps in Milan is a Local Officer who last year felt led to do something for the poor children of the city. He made arrangements to send thirty into the country for a month's holiday. Moncy was collected, accommodation secured with Salvationist comrades, and the little one spent one of the happiest ittle one- spent one of the happiest months of their lives away from the squalor of their usual surroundings. When they returned, a most furious attack was made upon the kindly-hearted Salyationist by an antagonistic body. For some time he was danger of losing the public office occupies and even feared he would be compelled to leave the city

It is gratifying, however, to know that persecution on the whole is becoming less marked as the Army's Coming less marked as the Army's Work is better understood and appreciated. Among the speakers at a recent gathering in Rome addressed by Mrs. Lieut. Commissioner Peyron was a prominent Italian gentleman who praised highly the Officers and Soldiers of the Army, saying he marvelled at the way they continued their work in face of difficulties. "Many of us," he said, "waited expectantly, when the Founder died, to see what would happen to the Movement. But the wonderful thing is that, looking back at the work in Italy, we see that the Founder's mantle has not only descended upon his successor's shoul-ders, but upon the shoulders of every Salvationist,"

I have read somewhere that love and sorrow both have their beginnings in the heart of God. Prohably it is true; anyway, they were both shown forth in perfection on the Cross of Jesus. What is love for souls without sorrow for the world's sin?—and what is the love of Christ without fellowship with His sufferings? STAFF SEXTETTE

treal I.—Musical Festivals Draw Seekers

The visit of the Staff Sextette to Montreai I. had been looked forward to for a considerable time with great interest, therefore, when the party opened their week-end Meetings on Saturday evening, February 24th, the miled—was agog with excitement and anticipation. Brigadier Barr piloted the Meeting, and spoke real licarty words of welcome to the visitors. He words of welcome to the visitors. He made no secret of the fact that the business of the Sextette party, in common with that of all Salvation Army specials, was that of bringing blessing to the Corps to which they came and the message of Salvation o the unsaved.

The opening Meeting was indeed characterized by real Salvation en-thusiasm, and it may be said that Montreal I. Citadel was transformed Montreal I. Crauer was transformed into a house of Salvation music and song. The playing of the Sextette, the various solos and singing of many of the old Salvation songs, paved the way for the day of blessing which followed on Sunday.

followed on Sunday.

The morning Meeting was in the hands of Ensign Keith, and his clarion call to holy living was not without results, for at the close of the Meeting one soul came forward.

The afternoon Musical meeting was preceded by a rousing open-air on St. Catharines St., at which the nembers of the Sextette took an ac-tive part. The musical programme at 3 o'clock was given to a fairly well filled Hall, and the same spirit of ap-preciation that had been so apparent on Saturday night was again in Monday night's musical festival was the great event to which so many musicians had looked forward to. The Montreal I. Citadel was filled, the chair being taken by Doctor Thornton, who proved himself to be a very capable and worthy chairman and did much by his genial disposi-tion and fitting remarks to carry the Meeting through to such a successful issue. To say that the items rendered by the Sextette collectively or its individual members, were heartily individual members, were heartily applauded is not doing the congregation justice, the place simply rang with tokens of encouragement and appreciation.

The comrades of the Montreal I. The comrades of the Montreal I. Corps impressed the visitors that they are indeed a fine Salvation Army fighting force. The co-operation of the Band, and their musical contributions from time to time, played no small part in the successful issue of small part in the successful issue or the Meetings, but best of all, when the Studay night prayer meeting was still being fought at 10 o'clock, very few members of the Band had left the Meeting, and there was still a fine gathering of Salvationists ready and willing to fight on when the Bene-diction was remouved.

Brigadier and Mrs. Barr and Adjutant and Mrs. Ursaki, gave every evidence that no stone had been left-unturned to make these Meetings the success they were. During the week-end the members of the Stoff Sex-

It seemed on Saturday as if the weather might be some hindranee, but by the time the Commissioner stepped off the train the blizzard had ceased.

Following his usual custom the first Meeting of the series was for Soldiers, and when the Commissioner came on the platform a goodly number had gathered to greet him. It was a season of blessing. The Commissioner's heart-to-heart talk on the qualifications of Soldiership ealled for much heart examination to see if these qualities were there. After a solo by Lieut.-Colonel Adby

After a solo by Lient-Colonel Adby the Commissioner gave a Bible reading, and then a hallowed season of prayer followed, and the Service closed with an opportunity for all to give themselves afresh to God.

On Sunday, at 7 a.m., a number of comrades met for prayer, Brigadier Criehton, our Divisional Commander, being in charge of the Meeting.

The Holiness Meeting was well attended. In the opening song, lined out by Colonel Adby, we felt God was near. A season of prayer, a solo from the Colonel, and the Commissioner read from the Bible with helpful comments thereon.

SALVATION SOLDIER'S ARMOURY

WHAT MAKES UP THE FIGHTING SPIRIT?

Have You these Four Qualities?

Seeing that aggression is so important to a fighting force like the Salvation Army, and so loudly called for, it is a matter of the highest concern that we should carefully consider its nature and the best means of effecting it. The true Salvation spirit possesses four distinct qualities:—

tinct qualities:—

I. It has a clear perception of the necessity. It sees the thing calling for help outside its own circle. This spirit is like the practised physician. He sees the need of his patient, the marks of death on him unless something effective is done. It is like the practised lifeboat-man, who sees, through the darkthe yessel on the rocks. He es it must go to pieces and the must perish unless a deliver-is effected. This spirit ser-upon earth, and Hell coming hereafter.

II. The spirit of aggression has ong desires, amounting to a pas-on, to do something. It has sions. It is not content with mere visions. It is not content with mere outward performances and ceremonials. No fishing satisfies the really aggressive man or woman without catching fish. This spirit is not content to do business without profit, nor to wage warfare without capturing prices. turing prisoners.

Falth for results

Faith for results

III. The spirit of aggression has faith for results. Its possessor helieves that the thing that ought to be, and that he desires should be, will be—nay, that it shall he.

IV. The Salvationist possessed with the truly aggressive spirit is not content with seeing miseries, and desiring their removal, and believing that God will do something for them in IIIs good pleasure. He lieving that God will do something for them in His good pleasure. He goes for it. He struggles for it. He dares something; nav. he dares a great deal. He is willing to pay the price, even if it is a heave one. He wants the thing, and he will have it. if it is to be had, cost what it may.

How much do You Believe? ' Without faith it is impossible to please God.'— $Heb.\ XI-6$

ID it ever occur to you that laith and trust are the very foundations of life? We are compelled to trust somehody every day of our lives. If we go on a strange journer we must trust the aniphary officials to direct us aright. We must trust the eugine-driver with our very lives; if he did not know his business it would mean a serious loss of life. We must trust the people who prepare our meat. the people who prepare our meat, the baker who bakes our bread.

Should go mad

If we had not confidence in peo-If we had not confidence in people we should go mad. There is a certain form of mania which consists in the belief that danger harks in everything. The more patient dore not tent a slice of irread or increase of meat for fear both should be poisoned. I heard of a man once who dare eat nothing but eggs, which he holled for himself, so confidenced are be that off his servants. was he that all his servant friends were conspiring to kill and triends were conspiring to kin him.

As faith is the foundation of so-cial and political life, so is it of the spiritual. It is an essential in both instances. Communities could not hold together without faith and trust; neither can the Kingdom of God. In both cases faith, to be effectual, must be of the right sort. Many people spend hours in "praying for faith" instead of exercising it. What they really crave is sight. "O Lord," a win once prayed, "give me faith to realize that this sorrow Thou hast sent is for the best. Make me see the meaning of it." He wanted to see, Faith says:

"Lord. I cannot see why this should have happened, but Thon knowest; and that is enough for me." Faith is believing when you cannot see. If you could see taith would not be necessary.

"Without faith it is impossible to please God;" and, therefore, we are exhorted to "Flave faith in God."

We can get nothing in the spiritual world without faith. Paul writes to the Hebrews of a certain people whom "the Word preached did not profit, not being mixed with faith in them that heard." Very likely they had a head befief and not a heart belief. We must believe with the whole heart.

belief. We must beneve with the whole heart.

A gay, worldly girl was being dealt with in a Prayer Meetting by a lady who was anxions to lead her into the light. She helieved in God, and Heaven, and Hell, but she had no drain to be converted. The lady no desire to be converted. The lady no desire to be converted, the tady was about to turn away, when a young man with an open Bible appeared, and asked the girl to read John iii., 36: "He that helieveth on the Sun hath conclusing life." She ne Son nath overlasting life." She read it. "Do you believe that?" he asked. She said she did.
"Then you have everlasting life." he replied.

"I have not," she replied in turn. "I have no desire to be converted at the present time."

asting life."
The young lady was quite right; while the zealous young man probably forgot that "devils also believe and tremble."
The wind that "devils also believe and tremble."

and tremble."

The girl had faith of a certain quality, but it was not saving faith. Saving faith will not only "helieve that He is," but will "diligently seel Him" (Hebrews xi. 6). Saving faith is not bestowed upon any who do not want it. If their want of it is not bestowen upon.

The their want of it does not lead them to give up their sins and follies to obtain it, saving faith can never be theirs.

There meanle want to "feel" here.

Many people want to "feel" he-fore they can believe—feeling first, fith next. God says, faith first, then feeling.

By faith we say, "Jesus saves me now," Unbelief says, "But you do not feel any different."

Faith says, "I know it, but God is true to His promise; so I do not care about feeling; that has nothing to do with the fact."
By faith too was a say a

By faith, too, we go on living and fighting and conquering. Noth: ing that comes short of daily vieing that comes short of any vic-tory over sin and the Devil can be called real living. It is by faith only that Jesus lives in our hearts.

That is the great gift Paul desired for the Ephesians, "That Christ may live in your hearts by faith."

The happy state of mind, so rarrly possessed in which we can say "I have enough," is the highest attainment of philosophy. Happiness consists not in possessing much but in being content with what we possess. He who wants little always has enough.

ERE is a tonic for an exhaust-ed age. Here is a message for a time-serving generation. Here, as fresh and virile, as fluming and as uplifting as when it was pub-lished forty years ago, is a book for and unwaveringly for an exalted spiritual standard. "I said when I was young, and I repeat it in my maturer years, that if it (this high standard of Christian living) were to send me to Hell I would never pull it down. Let us keep it up. This is the way to get the world to look at it. Show the world working, toiling, triumphing, real, living, self-sacrificing, hardworking, toiling, triumphing, religion, and the world will be influenced by it. But anything short of this they will turn round and spit upon!"

We know how abundantly the truth of these words has been proved.

And Mrs. Booth goes further still.
She says, "It is a had sign for the Christianity of this day that it pro-vokes so little opposition. If there were no other evidence of it being wrong I should know it from that.
When the Church and the world

When the Church and the world can jog along comfortably together, you may be quite sure there is something wrong."

Here is a word of warning to Salvationists. The popularity of the Army, the appreciation of our work, and the widespread approval of our operations are indeed dangerous if we allow them to bridle our lips and stifle our continuous testimony against the ruin and curse and cruelty of sin—wherever sin is to be found.

The cell for uncerting and faithful proclamation of truth is voiced in the second paper on "A Pure Gospel." Mrs. Booth could have nothing to do with a watered-down edition of the proclamation of the good news. She did not helieve in smoothing people over. She rubbed in the need for gennine repentance as thoroughly as the Founder preechthe need for genuine repetiance as thoroughly as the Founder preeding it on Mile-End Waste. TRAINING FOR UNSELFISHNESS

N OT long ago (writes Mary E. Wilson, in an article sent to us for publication by the National Kindergarten Association of America). I heard a very lovable woman say "If my parents had realized how unkind their love for me was when I was a child, they would have spared me many tears. I was allowed my own way in everything and grew up a disagreeable and selfish girl. Later when I had to leave home and go among people I found I had to reform myself to be even tolerated. It form myself to be even tolerated. It was a long heart-breaking task, which I had to struggle through alone, overcoming habits which might easily have been kept from becoming habits if I had been guided wisely in my childhood."

Many parents seem to overlook or under-estimate the importance of the first appearance of undesirable tendencies in their children which can be overcome, if properly treated while dencies in their children which can be overcome, if properly treated while children are still young.

Ill-temper, selfishness, teasing, and fault-finding can be kept from becoming unlovely characteristics if a wise guide gives help at the right time.

At the root of wrong-doing one can always find selfishness. It besets the only child in a home where adults seem to exist to please and spoil him, as well as the little waif on the street where to "have," he has to "snatch." For either of these children, the kindergarten is a blessing. Here in happy surroundings he learns to share in work and play-to give as well as take.

Here a child learns to hang up his Here a child learns to hang up his wraps; to care for his rubbers; to sit erect, overenming a desire in slide in his chair; the obey the directions of the teacher given sometimes by voice sometimes by the piano; in yield his individual desire and do the thing that is right for him to the at that moment.

But perhaps the games help most to develop unselfishness. Early in life one needs to learn to share—to be a good loser—to relinquish smilingly to someone else, and for five days a week kindergarten offers a splendid opportunity.

In a large group of children, where

In a large group of children, where each has equal rights, the selfish child comes to see the need of respecting thrse rights, which he does by waiting his turn and sharing with others. And so the pictures, songs, stories, games and handwork open up to him the world about him and lead him from selfishness, out of himself, to musclfishness.

LUTHER BURBANK'S GOLDEN JUBILEE

The municipality of Santa Rosa, Cal. has purchased forty acres of the outskirts of the city, at a cost of $32,500, and is now raising a fund of $500,000 with which to equip and maintain it as a botanical garden, and a permanent memorial to Luther Burbank, who will, nn March Celebrate his seventy-fourth birthday, and the fiftieth anniversary of his work in connection with the cultivating of plants.

In presenting this memorial while Mr. Burbank is still alive the city of Santa Rosa is wise indeed, for the plant wizard has agreed to supervise the installation in this garden of a specimen of every plant he has developed, and is even now training caretakers and gardeners. This garden is not only to be a show place but a place for experiments and study by those interested in agriculture, horticulture and plant-breeding.

This fish is dug with a pick and shovel in places where there has been no water for eighteen months, and whose location is known by a small hole the fish leaves to breathe through. They grow up to the feet long, and store fat on their tails for keeping them through the long dry seasons.

WHAT ARE YOUR TALENTS?

By COLONEL S. L. BRENGLE

OES the devil ever tempt you to feel that you are of no use and can do nothing apart from and can do iothing apart from the playing of your instrument? I find a great many such people, and maybe you are such a one, and, if so, it is for you I write.

First, I would say, do what you can, "Augels can do no more."

Your talents may not be great, but use what talents you have and God will surely increase them. It is a law of God, that what is used shall be increased. Everything that has law of God, that what is used shall be increased. Everything that has life begins small. The largest oak was once enfolded in an acorn. The most skilful musician in the world at one time didn't know one note from another. The most learned man now living once did not know A from Z. Moses was once a helpless babe in a floating ark of bultrushes. The General was once a require convert. But noating ark of bultrishes. The General was once a young convert. But they grew and increased. If there is spiritual life in you, you will grow, if you will do with your might what your hands find to do.

Slow work at first

your hands find to do.

Slow work at first

Cultivate your talents. There are many thousands of Bandsmen in the Army to-day who at one time could not play an instrument, and who did not know a cornet from a concertina, but they began to practice. It was slow work at first, but they kept at it. Probably the first day they could not see that they had made any progress at all, nor the second day; but m a week or a month they could see. They began, kept patiently at it, and at hats succeeded. That is the way to cultivate any talent we have. That is the way to become acquainted with the Bible, to learn to speak, or sing, or fish for souls.

Do not get discouraged because you cannot do as well as someone else. God has a work for you to do, and no not else can do it; not even the General could do it. God meant that work for you, and you for that work, and if you do not do it it will never be done. The thing then for you to do is to go to God and thank Him for what gifts you have and for giving you some work to do and the ask Him for wisdom to do for you to do is to go to God and thank Him for what gifts you have and for giving you some work to do, and then ask Him for wisdom to do it bravely, faithfully, and wisely, and He will surely be with you.

Diahonoring to God

Do not sit down in the discouragement of unbelief and think because you have not the talents of some gifted person you know that therefore you can do nothing. This is wicked. It is dishonoring to God, pleasing to the devil, and will surely result in a great loss in your soul, if not in the final loss of your soul, if not in the final loss of your soul, if not in the final loss of your soul, is not the devil, and will surely talents put his money out at use and gained five talents more, and likewise the man with two talents. But He says the man with one talent went and wrapped it in a tapkin and hid it, and so lost it, and was himself east out as a sothful and wicked servant into outer darkness, where there is greening and enashing of treth. into outer darkness, where the weeping and gnashing of teeth.

If you were learned, and wise, and mighty, and did great things, people would give all the glory to your learning and wisdom; but if you are little and foolish, then they have to give the glory to God. Go on, my brother, and do what you can.

And so, if you will pray and believe, fle will bless your words and works to mulitudes Remember. It is not what you say or do alone, hut it is His blessing added to what you say and do that accomplishes the work, and He will surely add His blessing if you will trust and obey.

Stored with truths

Stored with truths
Be a man of much secret prayer.
Aequaint yourself with God; take time to listeu to His voice; read your Bible; love it, pray over it; read good books; familiarize yourself with the 'Orders and Regulations for Soidiers," by the Founder, and you will get your mind stored with truths that will be to you as David's smooth will be to you as David's smooth stones, and God will surely use you and make you a blessing.

I remember well the first time I attempted to speak from a text. I utterly failed, and was filled with confusion. But by seeking His face confusion. But by seeking His face the Lord has long since given me victory, and I rejoice unutterably at the privilege of speaking for Him and by living a life of constant prayer down at Jesus' feet, and by a determined exercise of faith, I seldom determined exercise of faith, I seldom open my mouth to speak for Him without feeling a deep conviction in my soul that my words are aecompanied by the Holy Ghost and are litting the mark and reaching hearts. And this may be your experience, if you utterly forsake sin, consecrate yourself fully to the interests of Jesus, steadfastly believe and continue in prayer. God said to Moses, "I will be with thy mouth," and He will say the same to you if you wait on Him.

THE EFFICIENT SOLOIST

SALVAGING THE SOULS OF PRISONERS

For over twenty years Brigadier Frazer and His Wife "The Little Mother" work to make men of prisoners-Four men given life sentences are now under wing of Salvation Army in Toronto and are doing well

By FREDERICK G. GRIFFIN, in the Toronto "Star Weekly."

[This article is especially interesting in view of the spiendid work among Prisoners which is being carried on by a number of our Officers.—Ed.]

For twelve straight years the old Central prison in Toronto was to him a place of business, the beauiful business of seeking out the lit-tle bit of good that there is in every man and from that recon-structing a soul.

For that, too, is the way of the Salvation Army—and the right. and the right.

Not that there was any great parade of religion or of theology in this work of Brigadier Frazer's. If a man lifted from the depths "gave his heart to God." professed "conversion." so much the more cause for hallelajahs. But the main thing was to lift him from the depths or as Brigadier Frazer expressed it simply, "get the main (or woman) on his feet."

simply, "get the man (or woman) on his feet."

"Yon've got to feed a man hefore you can talk religion." explained the Brigadier out of his practical experience of more than two score years of feeding men and practising and preaching religion. "You cannot talk about his soul to a man who is hungry."

When Brigadier Prazer took up his work at the old Central Prison some twenty-two, years—ago, the while dreams of felorithing the whole institution. In two or three years I found out I knew nothing."

So, also Brigadier Frazer soon found out that you could not alternate to reform a man until you knew him. So that every man he met in the prisons presented an individual problem requiring patience and long careful handling if he was to be brought back to decency. There was no open sesame to such men's twisted hearts same to such mén's twisted hearts. Another thing that Dr. Gilmoinr said: "Hear and see everything, and say nothing—till you know your individual. Then deal with him accurately."

curately."
And another thing from the dead warden's lips: "I want you to know no creed. We have no creed here.. The men are down and out—and it's your business and mine to get them on their feet."

Twenty-five years' experience
The little Brigadier already knew something of the under-flog from nearly twenty-five years experience in the Salvation Army, but he learned much at the beginning of his prison work from Dr. Gilmour to whose isstice and human mour, to whose justice and humanity he paid sincere tribute. In those days the Central Prison was on Struchan avenue, about where the Stracini avenue, about where the John Inglis foundry now stands. "My duty," declares Brigadier Frazer, "was to go to the Central Prison every day and interview all kinds of men, Protestant and Roman Catholic, Gentile and Jew the

"During my twenty-one years of prison service I never once asked a man to what creed he belonged; and I never asked one to join the Salvation Army or a church."

But Brigadier Frazer was on the job early and late, winter and summer. He was there at seven o'clock in the morning with a haudelasp and a God-be-with-you for the clasp and a God-be-with-you for the man who was couning out to face the world again; he was there late at night if his staying could help some poor wretch to find some sweetness of soul. His fund of kindness was inexhaustible. No act was too trifling in the constant fight to restore faith. Failure meant simply trying again. Mways with nght to restore tath. Fanure meant simply trying again. Always with his wife helping him. For Mrs. Fra-zer was always by his side, always in the battle to restore these batter-ed men. No wonder she became known as the Little Mother to the prisoners. Anything that is written about her husband must always include her. Her presence will run right throughout this article.

Methods and results

What was the effect of this sys-tem of Brigadier Frazer's? What result did he have? The following story will perhaps illustrate methods and results:

and results:

Several years ago a commercial traveller was sent to serve a term in the Central Prison. He was a well-educated man, one of the best-calesman in the Dominion. But he took to drinking heavily. He got into debt. He forged a cheque. He was convicted to two years less one day.

In the prison he became a nuisance, Self-willed, high-string, sore with himself and fate, he was a trial to everyone. He was tried on every job in the jail without success. He was whipped several times for infractions of the rules. When he left the prison there was hatred of man and vengeance in his heart. Brigadier Frazer met him as he emerged but could do nothing with him."

Again he came to prison. For he was on the easy descent now. And again after that. He did three terms altogether. Each time his heart hardened. Each time he was a little lower in the seale. The prison officials were helpless with him. One day he asked the warden to have the man transferred to his eare. He was interested in him. He believed he could do something with him. For a time he had his hands full. The prisoner was intractable and sullen. One day when he was passing along the corridor. Brigadier Frazer, on the spur of the moment, said to him, "Look here, friend, you're going to end up in Kingston if you don't change your ways. Why don't you come to one of our Saturday or Monday evening Services?" Mrs. Frazer and my daughters will be there. You will enjoy them." The prisoner was intractable and sullen. One day when he was pass-rs will be there. For win enjoy them."

The prisoner came. He attended regularly. He changed his attitude to the officials. He was not converted, but he had a different outlook. When he left the prison Brigadier Frazer said to him. "If I can get you a job in Hamilton, will you go?" He said he would. He was given a job there. He did well for six months. Then one hitter winter day he came into Brigadier Frazer's office. He was drunk. He was without an overcoat. Where was it? Up in a York street pawnshop. Brigadier Frazer crossed to him and opened his coat. He had even and opened his coat. He had even pawned his underclothes. No man could have been more hopelessly down and out.

He held his job

But he was still worth trying to save. "If I get your job in Hamil-ton back will you take it?" asked Brigadier Frazer. He said he would. He went back. He held his would. He went back. He held his ioh, He never drank again. These little repeated kindnesses had con-quered the stubborn self-will in him.

little reneated kindnesses had connered the stuhborn self-will in him. This fighting for him by others had given him hack the fight in himself. He was free from prison forever. He was saved from a life of crime. He met a fine girl from Scotland. He wanted to marry her. He wrote to Brigadler Frazer asking his advice, "'I'd like the job of marrying you," wrote hack the little Brigadler. He got it.

To-day, it is six or seven years after. To-day that man has a hig job in the United States and earns a salary of $20,000 a year. He took a course in law and can now write L.L.D. after his name. He was worth saving. Every year he and his wife come and spend three or four days with Brigadier and Mrs. Frazer. They do not forget.

Here is another case from the memory of Brigadier Frazer. This chap had heen a banker. He was not a criminal, but he was an inveterate drinker. He had been in lail repeatedly. He had paid hundreds and hundreds of dollars in fines. He was sinking steadily lower and lower. Colonel Denison, disgusted with his frequent appear-ances, decided on a long spell to try and cure him. He sentenced him to two years less one day at the ioil force.

il farm. While there the Frazérs got in While there the Frazers got in touch with him. He became converted there. When he came out the Salvation Army got him a job. To-day he is in charge of an office with a salary of $3,000 a year. That is just four years after.

To-day the Salvation Army in the Toronto district has under its wing the salvation army in the touch the salvation army in the touch the salvation when who were the salvation to the salvati

Released on parole

The first spent twenty-cight years behind penitentary bars. Not once in all that time was he outside the walls. He had slain and he must pay. He spoke to Brigadier Frazer during a visit and expressed a desire to see the world again before his life drew to an end. Brigadier Frazer took his ease up with the ministry of justice. His plea for a parole was refused. He took it up again, It was again refused. The third time he was successful. The man was released on parole into the keeping of the Salvation Army. For four years he worked in one of their institutions. He never gave a moment's anxiety. At the end of that time Brigadier Frazer asked for his pardon. And he got it.

"That old man is still with us," smiled Brigadier Frazer. "We couldn't drive him away if we wanted to. I have a bank account for him of between $300 and $400. That man is a good man now. You should see him with his cane and his black frock coat walking down Yonge street, with self respect. You'd he surprised. Yet he spent twenty-cight years in jail. Some years ago Brigadier Frazer went to Kingston with his parole and brought him back for the Salvation Army to care for. He, too, has since been pardon. The first spent twenty-cight years

Brigadier Frazer went to Kingston with his parole and brought him back for the Salvation Army to care for. He, too, has since been pardoned. He worked for the Salvation Army for four years, saved $1,500 and decided to get married. He met a woman with a little farm. He paid off the mortgage. He is living there now a new life and happy.

Chair as mercy-seat

"That man," declared Brigadier brazer, with a smile, "was converted after he came out of jail. His conversion took place at the last service conducted by Commissioner Rees before he sailed on the Empress of Ireland and was drowned. He was converted in that chair. I bought it." And Brigadier Frazer cointed with pride to a chair in the sitting-room of his home, the mercy-seat of a man who had killed another and repented.

surprised; for during my twenty years of wandering from Gol I was many times on the point of doing as Judas did, but was always a coward when I came elose up to it.

It was my cowardice that led to my undoing in the first place. At an amual dimner of employees one of the men sang a song in derision of God and the Salvation Army, and I did not raise my voice in protest. A moment later my workmates were elamoring for a song from me, and as I rose to my feet silence fell upon them and—Oh! how painfully I realize it now!—I could have made a lasting impression upon them for good by singing a song about God and His love. But I failed.

Instead, I sang some sentimental song about the old homestead and sat down already disappointed and disgusted with myself and my precious lost opportunity—lost because of cowardice.

Before the night was over I had smoked a cigar. "What harm is there in a smoke?" suggested the Evil One. Within a month I was in my old corner of "The Blue Boar."

Outwardly everything seemed to be prosperous. Of money there was plenty. I never lacked companionships; but the guawing at my heart, the hollowness of all my attempts at enjoyment, and the sleepless nights, ever oppressed me. In the darlness of the night 1 have almost mwillingly scanned the sky and have had visions of that thorn-crowned brow and piereof that thurn-crowned brow and pierced side. But a moment later the Devil has blurred my vision, and numbed my senses, and I have reverted to the world for satisfaction which, alas, never came to my soul.

For years, each night, I walked home by the river side, hoping that I might by the river side, hoping that a might perchance muster up sufficient cour-age to put an end to my twenty-four-hour day of misery. How came the great change? I had at length arrived to the conclusion that I was indeed a betrayer, and the more I thought the more determined I became that there was no way for me but to hurl myself into eternity. Sending my wife and children to friends in the country for a week, I determined to drink every day until I could drink on more, calculating that by the end of the week I would have sufficient courage in take the plunge.

One night during the week I was sitting in my kitchen when in walked some Salvation Army Bandsmen, and before I knew what had hunpened they were kneeling around me praying that Got would save me. FISHING FOR COAL

A Story Showing How God Answers Prayers of those in Nood of Material Blessings

An incident strangely reminiseent of the Biblical story of the fishermen disciples toiling all night and eatching nothing is related by a comrade in Sunderland, although in this case the nets had not been east for fish, but coal. "I have an old boat," says this contrade, "and I go on the River Wear with a drag net. I drag for coal near the Hetton and Wearmouth coal drops, where the ships take in coal. Every morning and evening af family prayers we lift our hearts to fod to help me get some coal for our need, for I am memployed, and find the dole insufficient. I went up the river the other day and dragged in three different places but gathered mly about a shovelful. Disheartened. I washed my net and prepared to go toom when I suddenly remembered washed my net and prepared to go home, when I suddenly remembered home, when I suddenly remembered my prayer and a voice seemed to say. 'Oh, ye of little faith.' I at once returned to a place at which I had dragged unsuccessfully, and though I saw some other men leaving the spot in their boat quite dispirited, I cast my net in faith. Immediately I began to see the control and some had alloud the spot of the control and some had alloud the same seemed and some had alloud the same properties. my net m taun. Immediately I began to get coal, and soon had about two hundredweight."

BEFORE THE TRAIN CAME

The Salvationist is every ready to The Salvationist is every ready to make a tool of opportunity. There happened recently an incident in Ceylon which well illustrates this. Colonel Millner, the Territorial Commander, while waiting at a railway station for a train, was approached by a young Buddhist, who stated that he had attended a Meeting the Colonel had just concluded, and felt he ought to give hinself to the "Great God," about whom he had heard. He was asked whether he was sufficiently in carnest to kneel and pray where he asked whether he was sufficiently in carnest to kneel and pray where he was, and, the reply being in the affirmative, the two knelt together, the young man crying to the "Great God" for mercy. Assured of his cry having heen answered, the convert rose to his feet ucelaring his intention to do all in his power to prove the reality of his conversion and his gratitude to the Saviour. tude to the Saviour.

A WHISTLING SERMON

And the Good Effect it had on a Man in a Railway Train

Even a whistler can be an agent Even a whistler can be an agent of blessing and inspiration, according to a recent happening in Melbourne. Those, therefore, who can boast of little talent for speaking, manipulating an instrument, or for singing, if such there be, and yet desire to be of service to their fellows, can perhags find their open door by emulating the Officer to which the incident refer. Travelling from the Victorian capital to the suburbs recently, this Office had as his companion in the railway compartment a gentleman who remained silent until he had almost reached his destination. The Officer had been whisting a tune, the work had been whisting a tune, the words had been whisting a tune, the wonk of which exactly expressed the bappy condition of his soul. Almost unconsciously the notes were whistled, but they spoke loud words to the stener, who remarked, "You do not often sing that now, do you?" "Oh, yees," replied the Officer, "fairly often. I suppose you mean 'Conqueoros at last'?" "Yes," said the other, "these are the words I mean." "Oh, wei," continued the Army man. "that is continued the Army man, "that is exactly how I feel. I realize that I am conqueror." Just before alighting the gentleman, taking the whistly the hand, said, "Well, friend, keep on whistling and God bless you!"

However, back of that news item lies the brief story of a life quickly broken and almost ruined through una bit of mere recreation and sport. While engaged in his pastime of angling he fell in with another youth of practically his own age, and with whom he was acquainted, and follow-ing their bovish desire for romance and excitement, they planned to run away together and seek their fortunes away from the shelter of the old home and the emobling influences of neir parents.

Three years ago, in a beautiful New England city, a boy set out on a fishing exentsion one afternoon with no other intention than fo enjoy a lit of mere recreation and sport.

Chicago, St. Louis and other Wes-

Cheege, St. Louis and other Wes-tern cities were visited, mittl finally they landed in Detroit, Mich., and here became estangled in the trench-erous meehes of bad associations and companionships, and both sank rapidby into the practise of vice and sin. Of course their . Midsummer after-noon's dream of adventure did not contain anything so disastrons, but nevertheless one thing led to another, and very soon the lowest round of the ladder had been reached by the mere lad across whose yet new page has just been written that he is the youngest dope-fiend ever discovered in the State of Michigan.

Had drunk deeply

He was only a boy and yet he had drunk deeply of the cup of iniquity, and it would be sad, indeed, if we should have to end our story of him as we see him taken before the court to receive sentence as the law's administrator might see fit.

There the story turns, however, and the long, weary climb which he must make to regain his self-mastery and rsepect begins. When Probation Officer Mr. Small questioned him he would not at first reveal his real name would not at tirst reveal in real name for fear of bringing shame and re-proach upon the loved ones he had wronged and whose love he could not forget. Finally, he admitted who he was and a wire was despatched to his home,

His poor parents were distracted when they received the word of their boy's fall and apprehension, but in their distracts they turned to the Corps Officer of the Salvation Army in their city and appealed to him for help.

The Officer sent a wire immediately to Lieut-Colonel Withers, Divisional Commander in Detroit, askinghin to go to the court and intercede on the boy's behalf and endeavor to have him released.

Brigadier Sheppard, of the Detroit Rescue Home, happened to be in the office of Major Norris, who was in charge of the Divisional Headquarters at the time, and when he understood the circumstances he offered to interview the court and take charge of the boy's case,

A visit was made to the Probation Officer and Brigadier Sheppard pleaded, on behalf of the boy's parents, that Mr. Small request the court to re-lease the prisoner, Mr. Small, however, said that the only condition un-der which he could make such a request were that the father come and take charge of the boy or that the Brigadier become personally responsible for his delivery to his parents.

This, of course, involved an outlay of considerable money, and another wire was sent to the anxious father wire was sent to the auxious father and mother, through the Corps Offi-cer in the New England city, to as-certain whether or not either of these arrangements could be worked out and the expenses of whatever plan should be decided upon met.

A quick answer

The answer came almost immediately. All expenses would be paid if the Brigadier would only bring home their boy.

When the boy's case came up for judgment Brigadier Sheppard appeared before the court and begged the judge to release the boy and give him another chance. The judge was perfectly willing to turn the boy over to the charge of the Brigadier, but he did not consider it safe to do so unless he was handcuffed to the Brigadier's wrist; he being conneletaly. Brigadier's wrist, he being completely under the influence of the drug.

Knowing that it would almost break the hearts of the poor father and mother at home to see their boy brought in shaekles, Brigadier Sheppard finally persuaded the judge to started out together for the little old home in the East.

The boy fulfilled his promise to the judge, and, never eausing the Brigadier any trouble whatever, they were soon at his father's house.

The mother heard her boy's footsteps, and when they stepped upon the porch the door flew open wide and the parents stood with open arms to received their long-lost boy.

Welcomed home

He was welcomed with the kiss of forgiveness, and with joy they ex-plained to the Brigadier that they were celebrating their twenty-fifth an-niversary of their wedding when the wire arrived telling how their boy had been found and that he would soon he at home once more such he at nome order more. The news was the best woulding present they had received, they said.

PROMOTED TO GLORY

Brother Nancarrow, Earlscourt (Toronto)

Death has visited our ranks and taken from us Brother Nancarrow after a brief illness. Owing to Captain Green being ill, the funeral was conducted by Ensign Parsons. A memorial service was conducted on Sunday night, February 18th, by Commandant Camphell, in which representative speakers referred to our contrades life. Sergeam-Major Sibbick, on behalf of the Corps, spoke very feelingly. Bandmaster Higgins spoke of the need of being prepared before coming to a death bed and said our comrade had made things right before that time. before that time before that time.

Sister Mrs. Gullis, of Hamilton I., mother-in-law of the deceased comrade, also referred to his death, sayng that he was ready. The Band in a most touching way played the Dead
March in Saul, while the congregation stood.

Commandant Campbell gave a powerful address. Many prayers are going up to God on behalf of the bereaved family,

Sister Mrs. Jarvis, Famish Cove (Newfoundland)

Death has again visited us and taken one of our Soldiers in the person of Mrs. Albert Jarvis. Our Sister was taken sick a few mouths ago but was resigned to God's will. She hore her sickness without nurrunring. When asked by those who visited her if all was well become one with the soldiers. if all was well her answer was "Yes, all is well: I am ready to go." Our Sister will be greatly missed by the contrades of the Corps as she was contrades of the Corps as she was adways ready and willing to help on the cause of God. We pray that God shall constort the dear Inishand and two adopted ebiblero. The funeral service was conducted by Lientenant Williams. At the memorial service the husband and one of his little boys gave their hearts to God.

THE "WRONG-RIGHT" MAN

The Sunday evening Prayer Meeting had just commenced when the Ireasurer whispered to the leader, "My father is present to-night, I wish he would yield," and indicated the seat he occupied in the Hall. The Officer left the platform and made for the door, where he met, as he thought, the man pointed out to him, who, after some pleading, retraced his steps and knelt at the penitent-form.

Turning to the Treasurer the Turning to the Treasurer the Officer said. "Plank God for victory! to which he replied, "Plan is not my father, but, hallelujah, though it is the wrong man it has proved to be the right man, for we always looked upon him as being religious. He is a regular attendant at our Meetings."

ant at our Meetings."

Visiting the same Corps a few weeks afterwards, the Officer saw the "wrong-right" man, smilingly bappy and blessedle saved. His wife had also been converted and their three children were Junior Soldiers.
